Tools: Chain-nose pliers, crimping pliers, cutters

To make this design:

1. Decide how long you want your bracelet to be and cut two pieces of Beadalon approximately 1" longer than your desired finished length.
2. Add one crimp tube and one wire protector to the end of one Beadalon strand. Loop this end through one of the four jump rings that come attached to the clasp, and crimp closed.
3. Repeat step 2 on the second strand of Beadalon, attaching it to the second loop on the same clasp end.
4. String the cubes in the pattern of your choosing, or in the pattern shown in the image above. This bracelet uses a simple A-B-A-B pattern.

TIP: Separate strands of magnetic beads will stick together when worn together. You do not need to attach magnetic bead strands to the same clasp to get that multi-strand look.

5. Once you have strung roughly 55 of each bead, check your length. Add the other end of your clasp by following step 2 and 3 for the remaining Beadalon ends.
